Subject: WATER SUPPLY

I am both angry and shocked that a state the size of Texas has not taken action long ago to solve the water shortages. Perhaps the extent of the drought this year could not have been predicted. However, the growth in Collin County, and therefore, the water demands, were predictable years ago. What good are the elaborate plans on the web sites for the State, Regions, water districts, if no one implements those plans. The NTMWD has failed miserably. The leaders in Collin County cities have failed miserably. The citizens are trying to conserve water - yet the cities all continue to put no restrictions on development. We all want growth - but not when you cannot provide water for those already living here. Action must be taken NOW to begin implementing the updated 50-year water plan and the legislators must act to invest in the regional water projects.
