Dear Sirs:

I have been quite about this issue, because I thought the right thing would be done and the few people who were making all the noise would finally get tired of trying to push their special interest off on the public would go away. But I thought I would let you know what I think about this.

I live in Mt. Pleasant, Texas and I use to go to Red River County to work once aweek. I know how much the people of Texas needs this reservoir. We here in Mt. Pleasant, are low on water as it is now, and if we were to get any more industries, there wouldn't be enough water for them or us. I know the Dallas area is hurting for water right now also. It would be a big mistake to not built this reservior. Red River County is about to dry up and blow away. They don't have any water in their county now, so they won't ever be able to grow without it. It would be a big boom for their area, and it would help my area also. We have not been able to go to the lakes in the last 2 years because they are so low it is not safe. My grandkids will have to deal with this problem if we don't built this lake and do it soon.

I understand the problem about mitgation and hope something can be worked out about that. Surely smart people can do what is needed to get this done.

Sorry about my internet just dropped before I finished.

Thank you for the chance to give my opionion.

Bob Gray
